Connally Quits Cabinet, Lauded by the President

By Robert Siner

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury John Connally, the only Democrat in the Nixon cabinet, resigned today after 18 months in the post. He quit under circumstances reinforced rumors he might join Mr. Nixon on the 1972 Republican ticket.

George P. Shultz, director of the Office of Management and Budget and former Labor Secretary, was named by the President as Mr. Connally's replacement.

Nixon Asserts Soviet Summit Will Be Held

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—President Nixon added his personal confirmation today that his Soviet summit is on, saying, "I'm leaving Saturday morning."

Mr. Nixon's comment came as he worked his way through a crowd of about 500 tourists on the White House sidewalk while returning from the Treasury department.

Mrs. Nixon had said yesterday the departure date would be Saturday and White House spokesmen have been saying contentedly that "planning is proceeding" for the summit.

At Mr. Nixon's brief comment, a young man he was shaking hands with was the first to direct him from the President on his trip since he announced on May 8 the new move to the "main war" including the signing of North Vietnamese peace.

Summit agenda, open, flexible. MOSCOW, May 16 (UPI)—The side of President Nixon's talks with the Soviet leaders will be and flexible, with each side to raise any question of mutual interest, authoritative sources said today.

In spite of preliminary diplomatic engagements and the secret visit of presidential adviser Henry Kissinger, no definite agenda is being set for the summit, which is scheduled to begin next Monday.

Bonn Opposition Split on Eve of Bundestag Vote on Pacts

By David Binder

Bonn, May 16 (NYT)—On the eve of the critical Bundestag vote on West Germany's Eastern treaties, the conservative opposition split into three parts on a controversial issue: One for, one against, and one in the middle.

During the all-day session of the Bundestag, it was clear that the opposition was split. The Christian Democratic Union (CDU) and the Free Democratic Party (FDP) were the main opponents.

The CDU's 47-year-old leader, Konrad Adenauer, was the main voice of opposition. He argued that the treaties would undermine German sovereignty.

Adenauer's government can put up with 51 votes in the 496-member Bundestag and Mr. Barzel has said some more.

U.S. Rejects Bid for Peace Talks Renewal

By James Goldsborough

PARIS, May 16 (NYT)—The United States today turned down a Communist request for a resumption of the suspended peace talks Thursday. The U.S. delegation here said it would issue tomorrow a detailed message explaining the reasons for the refusal.

The United States indefinitely suspended the peace talks May 4, charging that the Communists were not negotiating seriously. Early today, however, both North Vietnam and the Viet Cong requested formally a resumption of talks Thursday.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese refusal came this evening. "We have received no indication that the other side has any serious intention to negotiate on matters of substance," said U.S. delegation spokesman Stephen Ledogar.

Saigon spokesman Nguyen Trien Dan said, "We have informed the other side that there will be no meeting on Thursday, May 18."

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said that Ambassador William Porter, chief U.S. negotiator at the peace talks, was returning to Washington today for consultations. The spokesman said that Mr. Porter left Paris this morning before the Communists delivered their notes calling for resumption of the talks.

He said that it was clear from a study of the texts of the Communist notes that "the other side has not signaled in these notes that it is their intention to respond to the conditions we have laid down, which is that serious negotiations should ensue."

He said there was no evidence that Communist intentions had changed from the practice of using plenary sessions for propaganda purposes.

The Communists have refused to hold more secret sessions until the plenary sessions are resumed. Last Friday, Le Duc Tho, Hanoi Politburo member who is waiting in Paris for the talks to resume, (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Wallace Is Paralyzed, But Still Plans to Run

SILVER SPRING, Md., May 16 (AP)—George C. Wallace, shot at an election-eve rally and suffering at least temporary paralysis in the legs, was reported today determined to continue his presidential campaign, even from a wheelchair.

The Alabama governor was under sedation because of pain, doctors said. His wounds included a bullet that remained lodged against his lower spine, but he was in no danger of dying, they said.

Gov. Wallace, who is 52, was removed from the critical list at Holy Cross Hospital here this afternoon.

Dr. Joseph Schanno said at a news conference that doctors attending the wounded governor are "very optimistic at this point." However, he qualified the statement by saying:

"I think the governor is going to make a recovery. Now what disability he has as a result of his wounds is difficult to evaluate at this time."

Dr. Schanno reported last night that Gov. Wallace had suffered some paralysis from the hips down, but that it was not known through some ligaments of his small intestine and brushed past his large intestine on the left side.

Even though the doctors would not predict if Gov. Wallace could walk again, his aides vowed he would continue his battle for the presidency.

President Nixon said he offered Gov. Wallace all facilities of Walter Reed Medical Center and added, "I can assure you Gov. Wallace is receiving the best medical care."

Charged with the shooting is Arthur Herman Bremer, 21, a white man who reportedly had followed the Wallace campaign for some time.

Accused Assailant of Wallace A Loner, Puzzle to Family

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 17 (AP)—Arthur H. Bremer, the onetime photography student charged with shooting Gov. George C. Wallace, was described today as a quiet but confident loner.

The picture drawn by relatives, friends and acquaintances of the man who is accused of shooting Gov. Wallace and three others at a Maryland shopping center yesterday is that of a youth who kept his opinions to himself, developed few friendships and was a puzzle even to his family.

Bremer, 21, is being held in lieu of $200,000 bond in Maryland, under federal charges of assaulting a candidate for public office and a federal officer and under state charges of assault with intent to kill. A preliminary hearing was set for May 24 in U.S. District Court in Baltimore.

Although acquaintances, including classmates in his college photography class, said they were not aware of political interests or activity on his part, effects found in his Milwaukee apartment last night indicated otherwise.

Among the items in the apartment were a Confederate flag and newspaper clippings about Mr. Wallace's campaign, some dating to 1968 when Gov. Wallace staged a third-party effort.

"He must have been for George Wallace, because he had a Wallace sticker across the door," said Stephen Wasche, 17, a neighbor in the apartment house.

Left Home Last Fall Bremer moved into the apartment from his family's South Side home last fall. Neighbors said he dropped from sight about a month ago.

Mr. Wasche also said he was "pretty sure" that Bremer had worked for Wallace in the Wisconsin Democratic primary campaign in April.

Bremer's truck driver father, William, 58, said his son had "never mentioned anything political," but he said he had learned that his son was a " dues-paying member of the 12th Ward Democratic unit."

Members of Bremer's family—who hadn't seen him since he moved to the apartment in October—described him as "shy and timid," and they expressed disbelief that he could have been involved in the shooting.

"We could never talk to him," said a younger brother, Roger, 18. "We never knew much about him." Roger said his mother, Sylvia, 57, had tried to visit Arthur at the apartment but he "slammed the door in her face."

"I can't believe it," Bremer's father said of the shooting. "If my boy did it he must have got awfully sick. Anybody who would do a thing like that has got to be out of his mind."

There's no explanation we can give at all," said Theodore Bremer, 34, eldest of four sons. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

North's Air HQ Knocked Out; Foe's Drive in South Slows

SAIGON, May 16 (AP)—The U.S. command, reporting today on 2,000 air strikes in North Vietnam in the past week, said U.S. jets had destroyed the North's air defense system headquarters where Russians were known to have been working.

North Vietnam's offensive against the South slowed down, meanwhile. A U.S. adviser in the Central Highlands reported that B-52 air bombardments had wiped out half of two North Vietnamese divisions operating in the region.

The U.S. command, in a six-page communiqué on the results of the 2,000 air strikes in North Vietnam, said Air Force F-4 jets attacked the country's main air defense complex three miles south of Hanoi at Bach Mai, "destroying several structures."

"The headquarters was wrecked," a spokesman for the Seventh Air Force said later in assessing the damage.

U.S. intelligence reports said Russian technicians and advisers were known to have been working at the headquarters but the U.S. command had no comment.

Main Pipeline Out The communiqué reporting on the results of the air strikes also said the main pipeline carrying fuel from the North to enemy tanks and supply trucks in the South was severed.

"All pumping stations along the main Communist pipeline running down the southern panhandle of North Vietnam into the Demilitarized Zone were destroyed," it said.

U.S. planes made more than 200 strikes over North Vietnam today as the stepped-up air campaign ordered by President Nixon continued. American aircraft have been averaging 350 strikes a day since the beginning of the effort to destroy the enemy's supply and communications routes to the South.

Mr. Nixon ordered the mining of North Vietnamese ports in an attempt to cut off supplies coming by sea from the Soviet Union and other Communist nations. His order on May 8 also said air attacks would be stepped up on North Vietnam to cut road and rail lines that carry military supplies.

Fighting Near Kontum In the heaviest reported ground action today, government forces in the Highlands claimed 78 enemy killed in fighting near Kontum. These included 42 slain in a battle last night, just north of Kontum, and 31 killed in an assault on Fire Base 42 Alpha, 14 miles south of the city. Senior allied officials said more enemy dead were sighted outside the base. South Vietnamese losses were given as 16 dead, 22 wounded.

The enemy shelled the Kontum airfield late today, wounding one American. Two other Americans were wounded when their jeep (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

was enough to win the election, even if the vote was split between the two candidates.

p. Chisholm Adds Voice to Denunciation of Attack

YORK, May 16 (AP)—Democrat Shirley Chisholm, a congresswoman from New York, today added her voice to the denunciation of the shooting of Gov. Wallace.

Chisholm, a black and a bitter opponent of Gov. Wallace's segregationist views, said: "The shooting of a man who has been elected governor of a state is a disgrace. It is a disgrace to the state of Maryland."

Chisholm said she was "saddened beyond words" by the shooting of Wallace, who she described as a "man of peace and understanding."

especially heavy voting in reaction to the shooting of Gov. Wallace yesterday in Laurel, Md., on the eve of what looms as his biggest 1972 political triumph.

In Detroit, locked voting machines forced half-hour delays in the start of balloting at a handful of the 179 precincts in a predominantly white northwest section of the city. City Clerk George C. Edwards Jr. said there were no major delays.

Mr. Edwards, who had predicted a 50 percent turnout in the city, said early voting was running at a rate of 57 percent.

The weather in Michigan generally was cloudy.

In Maryland, where the weather was fair, the turnout appeared to be a little above average in Cumberland and average in Frederick, both in the western part of the state.

In Cambridge, a Wallace stronghold on the Eastern Shore, where the governor spoke Friday night, officials said about 4 percent of the 6,200 registered voters went to the polls in the first two hours, about an average turnout.

Sympathy Vote

Some politicians predicted a substantial sympathy vote for Gov. Wallace that would swell his totals in two states he was already favored to win.

Michigan will divide 132 delegates to the Democratic National Convention proportionately according to the presidential preference voting. In Maryland, 53 votes will be decided on the basis of statewide and congressional-district results.

Even before a gunman shot Gov. Wallace as he campaigned yesterday in the Washington suburb, he had been favored to win in both states.

After the shooting an aide said the governor would continue his drive for the presidency. His top rivals are Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, and Robert F. Kennedy Jr. of Massachusetts, considered the leading candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The incident may create "a large sentiment to vote for Wallace," president Tom Turner of the metropolitan Detroit AFL-CIO organization, a Humphrey backer, predicted. Other politicians speculated privately that the shooting would stiffen any Wallace supporters and perhaps swing some voters undecided between the Alabama governor and another candidate.

McGovern and Humphrey

Sens. McGovern and Humphrey stopped active presidential campaigning, halted television and radio commercials and returned to Washington.

A Wallace television appeal went on as scheduled in Michigan, however, and a Wallace campaign worker in the Detroit suburb of Lincoln Park said "Nothing's changed. We're still campaigning, and we're still going to carry Michigan."

Billy Joe Camp, Gov. Wallace's press aide, told newsmen in Maryland today that the governor would go to the convention as a strong candidate.

In both states, President Nixon was expected to be an easy winner in the GOP primaries.

Neither primary today is likely to be decisive in the long Democratic presidential primary race, which appears increasingly to hinge on the June 6 California primary.

Nixon Aide Announces Two ICC Resignations

WASHINGTON, May 15 (AP)—The White House said yesterday that President Nixon has accepted the resignation of two members of the Interstate Commerce Commission—Laurence E. Walsh and Donald L. Jackson.

Both cited personal reasons in their letters of resignation to the President, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said. Mr. Warren said that successors for the two commissioners had not been determined.

Mr. Walsh was first appointed to the ICC in 1956 by President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Mr. Jackson was named to the commission by Mr. Nixon in 1969.

U.S. Skyjacking Decreasing;
Failure Average Is Increasing

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—Over the last 11 years, 188 persons have hijacked 143 American planes. The Federal Aviation Administration says 105 are still fugitives.

"We're making progress, but we have to stay on top of it," Transportation Secretary John Volpe said after a tabulation of records showed that nine of the last 16 attempts have ended with the capture or death of the hijacker.

Mr. Volpe observed that both the number of hijackings attempted and those successfully carried out had declined over the last three years—from 34 successful out of 49 tried in 1969, to 16 of 31 in 1970 to 11 of 25 in 1971.

The data this year, only three hijackings out of 14 have been successful," he said.

37 Convictions

Under Secretary James Beggs said yesterday he believes the courts, taking action against accused hijackers, have been "responsive—they have done as well as one could expect." But, he added, he still finds it hard to accept that it takes a year or more to bring an accused man to trial.

A tabulation of Transportation and Justice Department files shows that since the first hijacking on May 1, 1961, 37 hijackers have been convicted.

A number have received 20-year prison sentences, others have been given terms of 10 to 15 and 25 years, and one is in for life.

Two were killed during hijackings, one committed suicide during the hijacking and a fourth was killed during a bank holdup 15 months after hijacking an airliner to Cuba.

Another, facing a murder charge for killing the co-pilot in an attempted hijacking, hanged himself in his jail cell. Another died in Cuba of undisclosed causes less than a year after hijacking a plane to that country.

Twelve hijackers have been committed to mental institutions. Four more are undergoing mental examinations. Six have been charged and are awaiting trial, and nine are in custody awaiting court action.

Three, all charged with aircraft piracy or attempted piracy, have been released on bond.

Parts of Angela Davis Diary
Read and Prosecution Rests

SAN JOSE, Calif., May 16 (AP)—The prosecution has ended its murder-kidnap-conspiracy case against Angela Davis with details of the black militant's love for convict-author George Jackson.

Prosecutor Albert Harris Jr. completed the state's case by reading jurors a heavily edited version of Miss Davis's diary. In it, the former UCLA philosophy instructor talks of marriage vows and refers to herself as Jackson's "lifelong wife."

Miss Davis's chief defense attorney, Leo A. Blanton, asked Superior Court Judge Richard E. Aronson to dismiss the charges on the grounds that the prosecution had presented "insufficient evidence" and engaged in "a useless prosecution."

Mr. Blanton said that the prosecution had proven that Miss Davis "is a warm human being who has love in her heart—yes, for George Jackson, but for humanity as well."

He argued that the state had needlessly kept her jailed for 16 months and that "the only way justice can be done in this case is for the court to dismiss these charges on my motion."

Following Mr. Blanton's motion, the prosecutor argued that there is more than sufficient evidence to sustain a conviction and asked that the motion for dismissal be denied.

Judge Aronson said that he would rule on the motion before the trial is concluded. He told Mr. Blanton to be prepared to call his first defense witness Thursday morning.

The prosecution case took seven weeks. It involved 95 witnesses and more than 200 pieces of evidence. In much of that time, Mr. Harris had attempted to read jurors the complete 18-page diary.

He said that was crucial to show that Miss Davis had uncontrolled passion and willingness to kill, if necessary, to free Jackson from San Quentin Prison. Jackson subsequently was killed in a prison-breakout attempt.

The state contends that love was Miss Davis's motive for furnishing four guns and helping plan another escape attempt, from the Marin County Court on Aug. 7, 1970.

The state argued that a judge and four other hostages were to be traded for Jackson. Instead, the escape attempt ended in the shooting and the death of the judge, two convicts and an accomplice.

Judge Aronson whittled the diary down to two and a half pages that focused almost entirely on Miss Davis's love for Jackson—one of the three Soledad Prison inmates then awaiting trial on charges of murdering a guard.

The diary begins on the date of Miss Davis's first face-to-face meeting with Jackson at the Marin County Jail. Both were prisoners and both were accompanied by lawyers.

World's Fair
For Bicentennial
Of U.S. Rejected

BOSTON, May 16 (AP)—The American Revolution Bicentennial Commission voted today against an international exposition, or world's fair, at Philadelphia in 1976 as part of the nation's observance of its 200th birthday.

The rejection was by a 23-4 vote after two hours of presentation and debate. There were four abstentions.

The Philadelphia Corp. spent more than an hour attempting to convince the commission to approve its proposal for the exposition, to be built on a site near the city's airport.

William L. Raftsky, president of the Philadelphia group, said that he estimated the cost of the exposition at $600 million to be appropriated by Congress. He said that he believed the city of Philadelphia and state of Pennsylvania would have paid any additional costs.

GP's Tip Leads to Drug Haul,
7 Arrests in Paris and N.Y.

PARIS, May 16 (AP)—A U.S. Air Force sergeant at NATO headquarters near Brussels set narcotics agents on a trail that led to the seizure of 264 pounds of pure heroin and arrests in Paris and New York, officials revealed tonight.

The unnamed sergeant was approached in Paris three months ago by French garage operator Gilbert Ibarra, 35, who asked the sergeant if he would smuggle heroin to the United States, officials said.

The sergeant informed his superiors and an agent of the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics, posing as another sergeant, offered his services because he "flew to the U.S. more often."

The contact led to the drug haul in Brussels and the arrests in Paris of Mr. Ibarra and Christian Frederick, 34, said to be the ringleader, and in New York of Philip Veluca, 34, an American; Richard Bernadoun, 28, and Gilbert Bernstein, 40, both French; Jesus Henriquez, 35, a Cuban; and Enrique Barrera, 39, a Mexican.

Officials said Mr. Ibarra arrived at the Brussels meeting at the wheel of a rented car, gave the agent five suitcases filled with heroin and left immediately. The agent turned the heroin over to authorities while Mr. Ibarra and Mr. Frederick returned to Paris the same night. The agent left for Washington as if carrying out the smuggling plan, accompanied by a French police officer, the officials said.

Following the scenario, the U.S. agent rented a car in Washington and abandoned it as planned in a New York parking lot. The five arrested in New York were taken today when they tried to pick up the supposed heroin consignment.

When the news of the arrests was sent to Paris, Mr. Ibarra and Mr. Frederick were picked up.

In New York the arrests were also announced by John E. Ingersoll, director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, who lauded cooperation in the case from French and Belgian authorities and NATO. He said the planned shipment was the "second or third largest" destined for the United States.

Royal Visit to Provence Today

Crowds in Paris Brave Rain to Cheer Queen

PARIS, May 16 (UPI)—Drenching showers today failed to dampen the enthusiasm of thousands of Parisians who turned out for a glimpse of Britain's Queen Elizabeth on the second day of her five-day state visit.

The queen, accompanied by her husband, Prince Philip, was cheered by flag-waving spectators standing five-deep behind barriers along the Champs-Élysées as she was driven to the Arc de Triomphe.

Wearing a matching turquoise blue hat and coat against the cold and riding in a convertible

Imagine, she relit the flame of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier under the arch.

After a reception at the Hôtel de Ville, or city hall, where thousands of schoolchildren, each provided with a Union Jack, cheered the queen, the royal party split up.

Party at Embassy

The queen gave a 14-place luncheon party at the British Embassy for personal guests, including fashion designer Jacques Fath. At her request, an especially light meal of mouseline

Chantilly, quail and grapes, salad, cheese and peach dessert was served.

This afternoon, the queen visited the British Standard Athletic Club in the forest of Meudon, a southwestern suburb.

The duke of Edinburgh lunched as guest of the Paris Chamber of Commerce. He spoke on two of his favorite topics: the need for aid to underdeveloped countries and the fight against pollution.

Prince Philip also spoke of the "furious disagreements" between France and Britain over the last 10 years. "But at the bottom of our hearts we know that in times of real crisis, our two peoples would stand side by side as firmly and with the same determination as they had during two world wars," Prince Philip said.

Joined by Prince Philip, the queen went to the Australian Embassy, where more crowds stood in a downpour to welcome them.

Commonwealth Affairs
At the embassy, where she was received by Ambassador Alain-Philip Renault and his wife, the queen met representatives of Commonwealth missions based in Paris.

This evening, the queen gave a dinner in honor of the French government and later went to watch a military horsemanship display near the Eiffel Tower.

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will leave at 10 a.m. tomorrow by plane for Nîmes. The queen will go by car to Arles, where she will visit the arena, the ancient theater and the cloister of St. Trophime. Then she will go to Avignon, where she will visit the Palace of the Popes and the garden of the Doms. She also will visit St. Rémy-de-Provence.

During this time, the Duke of Edinburgh will visit the Camargue. At the end of the day, the royal couple will be reunited. They will then go to Les Baux-de-Provence, where they will dine and spend the night at the Hotel de Beaumanière.

Europe Council Home Cornerstone Is Laid

STRASBOURG, France, May 16 (UPI)—The cornerstone of the new 17-nation Council of Europe headquarters was laid here yesterday by Swiss Foreign Minister Pierre Graber, current chairman of the Council's committee of ministers.

The 70-million-franc complex, designed by French architect Henry Bernard, which is being built on ground donated by the city of Strasbourg, will house the Council, European Assembly, and European Parliament when completed in early 1975.

The new building, which includes a 400-seat amphitheater, replaces the present provisional quarters built in 1949 when the Council was founded.

Catholic Demonstrators Kick Ulster Administrator's Car

BELFAST, May 16 (UPI)—Demonstrators today kicked and struck a car carrying William Whitelaw, Britain's chief administrator in Ulster, on a "meet the people" visit to the border town of Newry, police said.

The demonstrators gathered as Mr. Whitelaw's motorcade left the local Ulster Defense Regiment center.

As it departed, a crowd briefly surrounded the auto, chanting and singing Irish Republican songs and began beating their fists and feet against its side.

"Now you know what it is like to be hated," one woman screamed.

It was the first hostile reception Mr. Whitelaw has received since his March 24 appointment to govern Northern Ireland.

In Belfast, a British patrol stormed a gantry of stones, bottles and bullets today in an attempt to capture two youthful gunmen spotted in the Catholic, Andersonstown area, a military spokesman said.

Military spokesmen said the soldiers, firing rubber bullets as they ran, were pelted by crowds of teen-agers in a 500-yard race to catch the gunmen, who took refuge in a house.

As they neared the building, the soldiers began drawing gunfire from its windows, but when they charged inside their quarry had vanished, the spokesman said.

Two Gunmen

The chase began when the patrol spotted the two gunmen with three other youths in the Catholic area. The trio of unarmed men were quickly nabbed, but the two others escaped behind a deluge of bottles and stones thrown by teen-agers gathered in the street, they said.

Another patrol, in the Lower Falls Road section, was fired at five times by a gunman, without any casualties being reported. A house on a street dividing the Catholic and Protestant areas of the Ardoyne housing estate was firebombed, the spokesman said.

Other British troops smashed a Catholic attempt to fence in a self-rules preserve in Belfast, and a bomb wrecked a building in Londonderry.

Trains in U.K. Near Normal; Autos in Jams

Skeptical Travelers Used Own Vehicles

LONDON, May 16 (UPI)—British railway services returned to almost normal today, but many commuters refused to believe it. Major traffic jams clogged roads into London.

During the morning rush hour, the Royal Automobile Club said, it took cars 30 minutes to move four miles on some main roads.

Thousands of commuters shunned the trains after the lingering effects of a nationwide go-slow by the rail unions, combined with a wildcat strike at five London train terminals, blocked nearly all rail movement in the metropolitan area yesterday afternoon.

The go-slow officially ended Sunday under a National Industrial Court order requiring normal work until a union vote is taken in the dispute.

Issue Under Appeal
The unions sought to have this order reversed in a London appeals court, which sat for the third day today.

A spokesman for the government-owned railways said most workers were cooperating with the court order.

"We can anticipate normal service by this evening," he said.

The go-slow, the second called by the unions, came after the union leadership rejected a 12.5 percent pay increase because it was not backdated to May 1.

The unofficial locomotive drivers' walkout at five of London's train terminals came after an engineer substituted for a sick supervisor.

The walkout created pandemonium among irate commuters, who clashed with police in trying to rush a union meeting at Victoria Station. One traveler was arrested in the melee, police said.

Dr. Sandor Rado, Freud Disciple, Dies in New York

NEW YORK, May 16 (NYT)—Dr. Sandor Rado, 83, one of Freud's original disciples, who founded the first school of psychoanalysis at an American university and who was for many years a leader in the psychoanalytic movement, died late Sunday.

A native of Hungary, Dr. Rado began his psychiatric career in 1910. He resolved to become a doctor, to train under Freud and specialize in psychoanalysis. In 1926, Freud appointed Dr. Rado editor of the two official international journals of psychiatry, Zeitschrift und Imago.

With the rise of Nazism, Dr. Rado fled to the United States. He was invited by Columbia University in 1944 to establish a graduate school of psychoanalysis. He served as the school's director from its beginning until his retirement in 1955.

Israel Labor Head Returns to Post

JERUSALEM, May 16 (Reuters)—Top Israeli trade union leader Yitzhak Ben-Aharon, who resigned Sunday in a row with the government, announced today that he had withdrawn his resignation.

He met President Zalman Shazar today at the president's request and informed him of his decision immediately after telling Premier Golda Meir that he was not resigning after all.

Later he told a press conference that he had decided to continue in his post as secretary-general of the powerful Histadrut trade union federation after "thorough clarifications and discussions with various bodies in the Histadrut, and in response to the excited and enthusiastic reaction of workers throughout the country."

GERMAN HAIR FORCE—West German soldier wags as buddy sits down to get haircut in Düsseldorf, Sunday, following orders by German Defense Ministry that hair must not touch uniform or shirt collar.

W. German Soldiers Obey Order Give Up Nets, Revert to Trim Cut

BONN, May 16 (Reuters)—Long-haired soldiers in West German Army surrendered today—to the good old "back and sides."

For a year, as an experiment, they had been allowed to wear their hair as long as they liked. Hair nets were issued as standard equipment. The Defense Ministry's reason was that "what is in the head is more important than what is on the head."

But the hirsute state of the 470,000-man army soon drew criticism and the army's image began to decline. One newspaper called it "the laughing stock of NATO."

And then, there was a shortage of hair nets to come with, and the soldiers started to make do with swimming caps and mosquito netting.

Furthermore, the nylon nets issued by the army had to be replaced by cotton nets when it was found that static electricity from the nylon could interfere with radar equipment.

Army doctors then came out against the long-haired soldier, saying that in military conditions they encouraged diseases.

Thus, it came as no surprise when the Defense Ministry decided this week to halt the experiment and revert to traditional short haircut.

A military spokesman admitted there had been "a few difficulties of discipline" in enforcing the new order, but added jokingly: "They can always wear wigs."

Delayed by Legal Problems Beatles Agree on Splitting Fortune, Put at £6.5 Million

LONDON, May 16 (AP)—Paul McCartney said today that the four former Beatles have agreed to split their fortune into equal shares to end the bitter feud among them. But legal complications are preventing the action.

The breakup came after the three others—John Lennon, George Harrison and Ringo Starr—in a lengthy court action last year to wind up the partnership, which has earned an estimated £20 million in the last 10 years.

Their current assets of more than £55 million are frozen until legal problems can be cleared up.

Mr. McCartney said in an interview published today: "It should be simple. We've all talked about this and I think the obvious way is a four-way split. The others agree, but they're tied up by legal complications."

In an apparent reference to the fortune and how much each of the four stars got, Mr. McCartney added: "If all the money due to us had come to us, we'd have been made for life and still have enough to give every person in the British Isles a big share-out."

Split Over Manager
Mr. McCartney split from the Beatles four years ago when they insisted on having Allen Klein, American show-business wizard, run their corporation, Apple.

The former Beatle now has a new band, called Wings, in which his American wife, the former Linda Eastman, plays piano and bongos. He toured clubs and camps in northern England to perform for the first time in five years.

Mr. McCartney, who parted with the Beatles before the start of the world's stadium tour, said that he has fought playing again to audiences.

"During the last years, Beatles, we just made records never performed in public. Now it's like starting over again 15 years ago in the clubs in Liverpool."

"I've honestly been re-born with the new group."

U.S. Sites Targets Of Toulouse Bom

TOULOUSE, France, 16 (Reuters)—Home-made explosives exploded today at sites wholly or partly by American companies in the city of Toulouse, said that he has fought playing again to audiences.

The attacks on the Pirelli Co. showrooms and the Xerox Co. premises resulted in explosions here subsidiaries of U.S. firms.

The assaults broke windows at Ford and the fire to new cars. Firemen fired at both Ford and Xerox.

Rockefeller Vetoes N.Y. Anti-Busing Bill

ALBANY, N.Y., May 16 (AP)—The Legislature's latest attempt to ban busing as a means of achieving racial balance in schools has been vetoed by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who said earlier that he supported President Nixon's call for a one-year moratorium on busing.

Gov. Rockefeller said in his veto message Sunday that he had been advised by Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz that the Legislature's attempt to impose a one-year moratorium on busing was substantially the same as a 1969 state anti-busing law that was ruled unconstitutional by federal courts.

The new legislation would have prohibited state education officials and appointed school boards—mostly those in larger cities—from assigning pupils or shifting school administrative units to establish racial balance.

State's Drive Is Effective

China Family Planning Averts Expected Population Boom

By Charles Flato

BEIJING, May 16 (UPI)—The government's drive to limit family size in China has been effective, according to a new report. A new year's day both Chinese and foreign experts estimated that there would be a million people in China by 1981. State leaders have been a drastic change, a vigorously promoted government family planning campaign is now expected to hold China's population growth to well below the estimated figure. From all one can learn, the campaign is supported by most people, especially those of child-bearing age.

This campaign is carried out by mass propaganda and by an army of doorbell-pushers who explain in homes, offices, factories and on farms the advantages of family planning. It appears to be working, in the cities particularly and less successfully in the rural areas. The tradition of having a large family still persists among old country people, but is disappearing among the young.

The decline in China's birthrate is the result of several moves first initiated by the government in 1962, when it began to be alarmed over a widening gap between China's productive capacity and its uncontrolled population growth.

Abortion Legalized

The government programs got off to a shaky start, although a law was passed in 1967 legalizing abortion and contraception. Little was done to popularize such practices. Fear of encroachment and the need for a large population of military age is said to have been the major reason for government foot-dragging.

During the early 1960s such fears began to dissipate and a cautious start was made in putting curbs on the birthrate. Now the program for limiting it is in high gear. The considerable capacity of the government and the Communist party to mount a mass propaganda campaign has been put behind the family-planning effort. Posters with slogans urging people to have fewer children, are seen both in the cities, often hung across main streets, and in the smallest of hamlets.

The campaign is a combination of several campaigns—late marriage, the use of contraceptives, abortion and, to a lesser extent, male and female sterilization. Contraceptives, abortions and sterilization are all free.

Late marriage is a distinct innovation in China. Before the Communist take-over, child marriages were common.

Series of Laws

All of this has changed since the Chinese revolution and is merely one aspect of a whole series of laws guaranteeing equal status to women. As a result, child marriage is a thing of the past and women in the cities rarely get married before they are 24 or 25, often later.

Women in the country tend to marry several years earlier, usually at 18, and the government campaign centers on them in an effort to get them to defer marriage as long as their city sisters. Men, in both rural and urban areas, generally marry at 27 or 28. The government is urging them to wait until they are 30.

However, the emphasis in the family-planning campaign is not on deferring marriage but on popularizing the use of contraceptive pills and devices.

Tried to Prevent Riot, Cohn-Bendit Says at Trial

FRANKFURT, May 16 (UPI)—Daniel (Dany) the Red Cohn-Bendit, 28, former leftist student leader charged with inciting a riot during a street demonstration last year, today told a jury he had tried to avoid a confrontation with police.

The red-haired youth told a jury during the first day of his trial that he had tried to restrain the crowd of students demonstrating in solidarity with the Black Panther movement in the United States.

But the prosecuting attorney accused him of making inflammatory remarks, urging demonstrators to resist police.

Two remarks he allegedly made during the Nov. 28 demonstration were: "Form chains... Tear the bulls (police) apart."

Mr. Cohn-Bendit denied making the remarks and said that "with all sureness" he was not responsible for the bitter clash which followed.

"I wanted to keep the two groups separate and prevent a senseless clash," he said.

Police said that the expected demonstrations by leftist students supporting Mr. Cohn-Bendit failed to materialize today.

Demonstrations Set in Salzburg

VIENNA, May 16 (UPI)—Communist and anti-Vietnam war protesters have been granted permission to demonstrate in Salzburg Saturday—the day President Nixon arrives for a private visit, the Austrian Interior Ministry said today.

Ministry officials said three radical leftist groups have been given permission to hold demonstrations starting at 4 p.m. Mr. Nixon arrives at 10 p.m. for a 36-hour stopover en route to Moscow.

The requests to demonstrate were submitted in time and we had no alternative but to grant permission," Hans Biringier, deputy chief of police in Salzburg, said. "But there will be plenty of police on hand to keep the situation under control."

President Tito and President Ceausescu at ceremonies at the Iron Gates Dam.

Tito and Ceausescu Inaugurate Power Dam

KLADOVO, Yugoslavia, May 16 (UPI)—President Tito of Yugoslavia and Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu today inaugurated the Iron Gates Dam, linking their two countries across the Danube.

The ceremony marked the completion of a seven-year joint project, and set into operation Europe's largest hydroelectric power plant.

The two heads of state embraced at the middle of the dam, then pulled levers and threw switches to put the world's sixth largest electric generator—with an annual capacity of 12 billion kilowatt-hours—into action.

President Tito took advantage of the occasion to speak against Israel and to make an indirect attack on U.S. military actions in Indochina.

"This is the largest achievement in multilateral cooperation among socialist countries," Mr. Ceausescu said, citing Soviet engineers brought in for advice and Soviet-built machines used in the project.

The dam turned one of Europe's most dangerous river passages into a tranquil reservoir, which engineers said would increase the Danube's shipping capacity sixfold along the Yugoslav-Romanian border.

The $500-million project, begun in 1964 with equal investment from Yugoslavia and Romania, cost the lives of 14 workers during its seven years of construction. It also forced 7,400 Yugoslavs and 14,000 Romanians to abandon their homes along the 20-mile river gorge and move into government-provided housing at a higher elevation.

Before the artificial lake drowned the rock cliffs that once rose 2,800 feet out of the river, archaeologists saved artifacts from the area dating back as far as 8,000 years.

With Newly Supplied Soviet Planes

Egypt Says It Can Hit Israel's Heartland

CAIRO, May 16 (UPI)—Egypt has obtained from the Soviet Union long-range planes capable of attacking Israel's heartland and returning to base, Premier Anwar Sadat said today.

In a speech broadcast by Cairo Radio, Mr. Sadat said that the new Soviet supplies have destroyed the myth of Israel's air superiority.

"I assure you, and I know the weapons we have received, that the date of the battle is not far off, and we shall regain every inch of Sinai and other Arab lands," Mr. Sadat added.

The premier was speaking at a rally in the town of Benha, 40 miles north of Cairo.

Mr. Sadat referred to a visit made by President Anwar Sadat and Soviet Defense Minister Andrei A. Grechko to an unidentified air force base yesterday. According to Egyptian newspapers, the president watched "long-range fighter-bombers" and "modern planes whose speeds exceed 3,000 kilometers per hour and which can fly at an altitude of more than 24 kilometers."

Elaborating on this, Mr. Sadat said that the "planes can launch raids against Israel and return to base."

"The alleged superiority of Israel in the skies of the region is nothing but an illusion. You will not have to be patient for long for Sadat will lead us in the battle for victory in the near future," Mr. Sadat added.

A major part of the speech was devoted to defending Mr. Sadat against his critics.

These critics, including some former aides of the late President Nasser, had submitted two memoranda to Mr. Sadat urging the "setting up of a national front"

and criticizing Egypt's close connections with Russia.

Mr. Sadat accused them of "defeatism" and said that the government "will not tolerate any tampering with the current regime."

The premier also visited the Shubra el-Khaima industrial complex, just north of Cairo, where he addressed a workers' rally.

The visit was preceded by the announcement that more than 20 workers, who were arrested following riots in the district last month, have been released.

MIG-23 Overflights

TEL AVIV, May 16 (UPI)—A pair of Soviet-built MIG-23 interceptors carried out a 210-mile reconnaissance flight over the Israeli-occupied Sinai Desert today, a military spokesman said.

The spokesman said that Israeli jets were sent up to intercept the intruders. He did not say if contact was made.

Poland May Get Astronomy Unit From U.S. to Honor Copernicus

WARSAW, May 16 (NYT)—American scientists are preparing to give Poland a big gift to mark the celebration next year of the 500th anniversary of the birth of Nicolaus Copernicus. It is a $1-million astronomical research center.

The center will be among the most advanced in the world. Plans are to finance the project with dollars accumulated by the United States in Poland from the postwar sale of surplus agricultural products.

Approval by the U.S. Congress will be required to use these funds for the project. Polish and American scientists involved in the plan feel that it is legislative hurdle could be a difficult one.

An additional amount, probably more than $100,000, is to be raised in the United States, perhaps from the Polish-American community, for the purchase of equipment for the Warsaw center and for an existing institute in Torun, the birthplace of Copernicus.

This equipment will include an IBM-1130 computer and a spectrograph, as well as other devices to supplement Polish instruments. The Warsaw center itself will contain several buildings on a 24,000-square-foot site.

Polish astronomers, who are delighted with the project, say the center will enable them to invite their foreign counterparts to study and work here under ideal conditions. One scientist likened the proposed center to Princeton University's Institute for Advanced Studies.

The idea for a new astronomical center in Warsaw emerged as the Polish government undertook its plans for the 1973 Copernicus anniversary. Hundreds of the world's leading astronomers will gather in Torun on the occasion to compare theories on the study of the universe.

Paradoxical Violence

Gov. George C. Wallace has been shot—seriously, but fortunately not fatally—and another has been added to that shaming procession of lethal attempts upon American political leaders. It is a succession that has seen four Presidents killed while in office; three others, Andrew Jackson, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman, were fired upon; one, Theodore Roosevelt, was wounded while campaigning for re-election. Robert F. Kennedy died under an assassin's bullets during his candidacy and Martin Luther King—not seeking office, but a political force—suffered a similar fate. There is a terrible consistency about this grim tale, and the latest addition will revive all those doubts about the nature of the American political process, about the techniques of campaigning as well as about the more fundamental problem of violence in the United States.

Yet there is paradox, as well as consistency, in the record. Among all the assassinations, successful or failed, there is real evidence of only two actual conspiracies—the strange little band that John Wilkes Booth enlisted to kill Lincoln, and the Puerto Rican nationalists who sought to kill Truman. Moreover, only the last of these had any substantial political rationale. The rest were all the work of alienated individuals, with virtually no moral support from any segment of the diverse American community.

For, apart from the assassinations, the American political structure has been unusually stable; its transmission of power conducted legally and quietly. Violence at the polls is rare; with the—admittedly notable—exception of the Civil War, the presidential succession has not been obstructed, or seriously threatened, during the history of the Republic. Even the disputed election of 1876, in a time of high political excitement and under the unstable conditions that prevailed in the years after the Civil War, was followed only by legal contests and the winner—however famous history may hold his claim to be—took office as President Hayes. Wars and depressions produced no grave threat to the system.

It would seem, therefore, that the threat which hovers over every American politician who forges into the limelight is a function of social disorders rather than narrowly political evils. This may seem to beg the question, since government is supposed to enlist the loyalty and enforce the reasonable disciplines of a workable society. But even here it is hard to find any pattern of genuine social grievance behind the attempts on the lives of political leaders. At most, one can argue that an atmosphere of violence, plus the fatal folly of permitting weapons to be so widely disseminated, brings risks to the American political system, and those who take part in it, that neither they nor the system deserve. This is part of a heritage older than the Constitution—and it is something that the American people must sever from their national life.

A Moscow Pause

In 1960, both President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev journeyed to Paris in the wake of the U-2 incident for a previously scheduled four-power summit, but the conference never met. Khrushchev, backing out at the last moment, preferred to use the opportunity for a propaganda blast at the United States, undoubtedly to appease hardliners in the Soviet hierarchy at home.

The Soviet Union, so far, has refrained from canceling the Nixon visit, despite the mining of Haiphong and other harbors and stepped-up American bombing threats throughout North Vietnam. But a big question-mark hangs over the projected summit. Will Brezhnev be prepared to greet Nixon in the Kremlin and smile and shake hands for the photographers if, at that very moment, American planes are bombing Hanoi and Soviet ships, assertedly carrying only food and fertilizer, are running into magnetic mines off the North Vietnamese coast?

Too much is at stake in the Moscow meeting to risk a breakdown at this point. The trade-and-credits deal that appears to be near completion may be of more benefit to the Soviet Union than to the United States. But the historic Strategic Arms Limitation Agreement, which promises to halt the nuclear missile race, is of overwhelming importance to both countries and to all mankind. Unless the moment is seized now, when it can be completed, there is a substantial danger that the opportunity will vanish.

As for Bonn's ratification of the Soviet-West German treaty, Moscow's great interest here must not obscure the equal American and West European interest in the Berlin settlement that hangs in the balance, along with general accommodation and détente in the heart of Europe.

A pause in the bombing of North Vietnam's heartland area and an offer to return to the Paris peace talks this week would be the best way to avoid derailing the Moscow summit. If the mines can be deactivated as well, at least for the period of the conference, that step would further improve the chances for serious negotiations. In Paris, it goes without saying that an initiative of this kind demands that Nixon as well as Brezhnev be spared military humiliation. If North Vietnamese troops attack and seize Hue while President Nixon is in Moscow, the Kremlin knows that his restraint would not last long.

A total cease-fire, of course, would be preferable to a short-term de-escalation of the fighting. But Hanoi has rejected that course, insisting on a political settlement first. Such a settlement could be advanced by a bombing halt and resumption of the Vietnam peace talks—perhaps by moving their venue temporarily to Moscow, where Nixon himself could take part. This possibility and the vital interest of the whole world in the impending Moscow agreements argue strongly for President Nixon to take the initiative at this crucial moment.

THE NEW YORK TIMES

International Opinion

Attempt to Kill Wallace

For liberals Gov. Wallace's intervention in the American presidential campaign was an embarrassment, or worse. He was not a serious candidate for the presidency, but even in his chosen role of spoiler and potential kingmaker, his racial attitudes, coated as they were with a spurious populism, tended to drag the other Democrats down. But the shooting of Wallace diminishes his country just as surely as did the murders of Malcolm X, Martin Luther King, President Kennedy, and Sen. Robert Kennedy. It emphasizes, again, if any emphasis were needed, that America is a society so deeply divided, so politically frustrated, so infected by violence, that the sight of any controversial figure fulfilling his public office seems to set someone fingering his gun.

Americans feel this more acutely than the rest of us. The earlier assassinations, particularly those of the Kennedy brothers, have left a national psychological scar that overshadowed the terrible election campaign of 1968 and even affects this year's. One of the unspoken questions hanging over the possible candidacy of the last Kennedy, Edward, is: Would he survive the campaign? That is a terrible question to have to ask in a democracy, and yet it is a serious one, and its seriousness will be underlined by the shooting of Gov. Wallace.

Elizabeth in Paris

The presence of Elizabeth II in Paris on her second official visit to France illustrates the entente cordiale rediscovered, but still more, marks the end of 10 years of distrust, incomprehension and even rivalry between Britain and France.

This rapprochement did not begin yesterday. Unfortunately, the number of these entente cordiales—history counts at least eight—shows their fragility... the new entente cordiale has not yet been tested. Be it on the defense of Europe, the role of NATO, or agricultural policy, the two countries have different conceptions. But on most of the great problems, particularly those of Africa and the Middle East, the points of agreement are more numerous than the divergencies... (we) recommend to the two partners of the entente to avoid the traps of nationalism, to make of Europe something else than a simple instrument for the defense of their strictly national interests...

PARIS—Notice was given to the management of the Théâtre de la Porte Saint-Martin on Saturday that the performance of "Don Cesar de Bazan" would not be permitted until certain precautions considered necessary to the public safety were taken. The committee responsible has determined to see that all the Paris houses of amusement take the precautions against catastrophic fires such as those of the Opéra-Comique and the Grand Charity Bazaar.

Fifty Years Ago

PARIS—Mr. George McManus, the American cartoonist, originator of "Jiggs" and "Bringing Up Father," has arrived here as the first step of a three month vacation which will take him over the Continent. He is looking for new material. He is accompanied by Mrs. McManus. He declared there was a dearth in America of good comic artists, and that although political cartoonists were on the decline, there was need for more good artists.

Revolt in a Far-Off Place

By C. L. Sulzberger

PARIS—The distant and exotic island Republic of Malagasy seems to be in the throes of some kind of revolution and while most Americans know little of that land and it ranks very low in the world power hierarchy, what happens there is important.

Madagascar dominates the Mozambique Channel off Africa's east coast and the route of those enormous supertankers which have been carrying Europe's oil around the Cape of Good Hope ever since the Suez Canal was closed five years ago. Moreover, it is a strategic key to southern Africa and the western and southern Indian Ocean.

During recent years the Chinese have been expanding their prestige in the former region. Thousands of their technicians have been engaged in building a railway across Tanzania to Zambia. The South African government, not averse to finding Communist bogymen under beds, claim they are getting ready to soup up the flickering black guerrilla war against the rampart of apartheid.

The Indian Ocean is more a Soviet concern. Britain especially worries about penetration of Russian ships and influence which is perceptibly gaining all the way from the Persian Gulf and Red Sea eastward to Ceylon and southward to Mauritius. Madagascar has always been a focal point for naval strategy. Long ago Cleopatra the Great aspired to control it.

The French, who are the devoted former colonialists, clavered the Malagasy Republic (then Madagascar) independence after a ghastly postwar massacre but they have maintained extensive military facilities there. These include one Foreign Legion regiment, one paratroop regiment, a naval base at Diego Suarez and an air force detachment.

So far as is known here—and scarcely any news is filtering out—those French forces have done nothing to intervene in the present fracas. Although thousands of demonstrators seem virtually to have taken over Tananarive, the capital, Paris insists it is sitting on its hands.

This was not the case last year when there was an armed uprising in the southern Tulear Province. Officially, France remained aloof. But French aircraft flew in government reinforcements secretly at night and the rebellion was crushed.

The 1971 insurrection was led by a party that Western intelligence sources claim is closely linked with China. Its leader had visited Peking four months previously. The Malagasy Republic contains a Chinese colony of 25,000. Although the country has no relations with Peking, most of the Chinese favor it. The local tale is that whenever a Chinese dies his papers are bought for an agent who is then smuggled in and assumes the dead man's personality.

Foreign Minister Rabemananjara told me a year ago: "We will not recognize Peking no matter what you do. We don't want them messing around here. Their propaganda is hostile and they seek to breed trouble among our students."

Last year's uprising was quashed. A curious aftermath was the expulsion of the U.S. ambassador and his five top assistants after a forged document claimed Washington was urging a coup against President Tsiranana. This kind of forgery is an old diplomatic trick which America itself has used, but Tsiranana fell for it.

The president, an eccentric but energetic man, has conferred with the South Africans about counter-Communist penetration. Secret visits were exchanged between South African and Malagasy generals. Tsiranana told me last May: "The Chinese have big ambitions here but they won't succeed."

Bit Off a Lot

But he bit off a lot by expelling U.S. diplomats despite apparent French efforts to smooth things and the discreet intervention of President Mobutu of Zaire. Some Americans were skeptical of France's professed good will. Others thought the Russians were behind the forged document affair.

Whether there is any connection between the 1971 rebellion and the present affair is impossible to know at this time. It is far too simple to say that Peking or Moscow pulled the strings in either case. There is discontent in impoverished, barren, south Malagasy and well-known resentment among students and intellectuals against the high-handed, flamboyant Tsiranana.

One must only pray and hope that whatever happens there will be no recurrence of bloodshed, especially on the horrendous scale of 1947 when the people revolted against their government—at that time French—and that whatever change is now produced will be peaceful.

WASHINGTON.—The bullets that felled George C. Wallace on the eve of his greatest achievement in national politics will also upset both the conduct and the calculations of the 1972 presidential campaign.

If he could recover in time to resume some form of campaigning, the Alabama governor may find an even more aroused constituency rallying to his cause. And some degree of sympathy vote may be reflected in the Democratic primaries of Michigan and Maryland.

If he is forced out of the campaign, there is no one now in sight to pick up the banner of populism, tinged with an overtone of

Amplification

Now that the World Harness Driving Championships have ended (HET, May 9), it should be pointed out that runner-up Joe O'Brien, though representing the United States, is actually a native of Canada.

O'Brien was born, and began driving, in the village of Alberton, Prince Edward Island, and is probably the only native of that tiny but lovely community ever to win any international renown. All the O'Brien family were involved in harness racing and I recall one race in which three of the four drivers were his father, his brother and his uncle. Needless to say, an O'Brien won. NACKA, SWEDEN.

Counting Craters

While North Vietnamese armored divisions roll across South Vietnam, in a panzer-style invasion, Anthony Lewis and his friends are busy counting the number of craters left by American bombs, and bewailing the future ecological damage which these craters will cause.

It is about time that Mr. Lewis and his friends realized that wars are not won by moral rectitude nor by the consent of the conquered, but by military superiority. A long line of military conquerors, from Genghis Khan to Adolf Hitler, exemplify this principle.

The South Vietnamese may be politically disorganized and militarily weak, but all evidence points to the fact that they do not want to have a government imposed upon them by the North Vietnamese.

It will be easier to accept as genuine Mr. Lewis's compassion for the South Vietnamese people when he denounces the role played by North Vietnamese military aggression in the latest phase of the war in Indochina, and not just American barbarism.

KENT GORDIS, Nyon, Switzerland.

Giant and Futile

As a Vietnamese woman married to an American, the grotesque expansion of the war in Indochina is perhaps more painful to me than many others.

The hugely destructive efforts of the U.S. to stop at all costs the Vietnamese revolution, which has continued for so long, affects me deeper even than the Vietnamese struggles against the Japanese and later the French, both of which struggles I lived through personally as a girl.

Despite his giant and certainly futile efforts to destroy the independence movement, and along with it the people and their land, President Nixon by now has perhaps gained an appreciation of the meaning of Vietnamese perseverance—embodied in an old Vietnamese expression: "When the waters rise the fish eat the ants; when the waters fall the ants eat the fish."

YVONNE HOUNG OUVIARD, Bois-Colombes, France.

How?

How, when invading North Vietnamese troops fire thousands of rounds into civilian populated An Loc, can people protest our keeping guns out of their hands by mining their ports?

Major Goals in Sight

Moscow's Summit Stakes

By Harry Schwartz

NEW YORK.—The Soviet economy passed a historic milestone in the first quarter of this year. By increasing passenger car output 47 percent, the Soviet Union for the first time in its history produced more automobiles than trucks. This is welcome news for millions of Moscow's eager would-be car owners.

Americans, too, ought to be aware of the importance of this news in this tense period when Washington-Moscow relations are teetering between military confrontation over Vietnam and next week's scheduled Nixon-Brezhnev summit.

For the Soviet Union to enter the promised affluent society this decade, complete with family cars and color television sets, Moscow needs peace and cooperation with the United States. Few Soviet citizens can be eager to torpedo these possibilities for the sake of distant North Vietnam, whose economic and military demands have already cost Moscow billions of rubles.

Calculated Risk

It was these considerations that led the London Economist to remark in its latest issue that "the Soviet Union has... an even bigger stake in Mr. Nixon's era of negotiations" than the United States has. And a somewhat similar evaluation was implicit in President Nixon's decision to take the calculated risk of minding North Vietnam's ports only two weeks before the beginning of his Moscow trip. The United States is already a rich country which has the abundant material wealth the Soviet people still only dream of possessing.

What is at stake in next week's Moscow summit has been stated in unusually dramatic and vivid terms by Dr. Henry Kissinger.

"We are on the verge," Dr. Kissinger told a news conference last week, "not just of success in this or that negotiation, but of what could be a new relationship of benefit to all of mankind, a new relationship in which, on both sides, whenever there is a danger of crisis, there will be enough people who have a common interest in constructive programs so that they could exercise a restraining influence."

The main particulars of the "new relationship" are already known and they are impressive. A successful Nixon-Brezhnev meeting could provide the first major check to the arms race in strategic missiles; open the way to massive Soviet receipt of new American machinery, technology and grain; lay the groundwork for extensive American investments in Siberia that would eventually provide Soviet natural gas to heat United States homes and factories, and begin the process of actual operational Soviet-American cooperation in space which could someday culminate in the first permanent manned settlements on the moon and Mars.

Nine years ago at American University President John F. Kennedy called for ending the cold war and breaking the "vicious and dangerous cycle with suspicion on one side leading to suspicion on the other, and new weapons begetting counter-weapons." A successful Nixon-Brezhnev summit and the forging of the "new relationship" would go a long way toward realizing that Kennedy dream.

Precisely because the stakes are so great in Moscow next week many Americans have criticized the President for taking the risk he took last week. But fairness would seem to compel criticism of Moscow, too, for supplying the enormous quantities of weapons that made the current massive North Vietnamese invasion of South Vietnam possible.

And the North Vietnamese, it is evident, want no "new relationship" between the United States and the Soviet Union. They fear that a genuinely improved atmosphere between Moscow and Washington would lead to a weakening of Soviet support for Hanoi's drive to conquer South Vietnam. Hanoi must have known that its current aggression would endanger the scheduled Moscow summit. It would be surprising if the Hanoi leaders did not hope that their military actions would result in postponement if not outright cancellation of the Nixon-Brezhnev meeting.

Pressure on Moscow

Hanoi radio broadcasts have been emphasizing alleged American air attacks on Soviet ships in North Vietnamese harbors and the deaths and injuries that have assertedly resulted. It has been a not so subtle form of pressure on Moscow to react more militantly against the new American tactics in the Vietnam war.

But so far at least Moscow has kept its cool and has put the interests of the Soviet people ahead of the Kremlin's ideological commitment to North Vietnam.

Mr. Brezhnev and his colleagues know that there is no cushion in their country for dying for Hanoi, or even for further delaying realization of the Soviet equivalent of "a chicken in every pot and two cars in every garage." That is the reason the Soviet doves appear to have won out over the Soviet hawks. With luck that situation will continue, the Moscow summit will take place and a major new era in Soviet-American relations will begin.

The Shooting of Wallace

By Max Frankel

segregation, that brought the governor 9.9 million votes, or 13.5 percent of the total cast for President, in 1968 and seemed to promise him an equally stirring following this year.

A Threat

No one has ever quite agreed on whether the building Wallace candidacy this year was a bigger threat to Republicans or Democrats. President Nixon has figured that he would run better in the South without an independent Wallace challenge. The Democratic National Committee had all but decided that it could fare much better in the big industrial states of the North without a third-party Wallace challenge.

But mathematically, at least, Wallace had an even better chance this year to win 70 or 80 electoral votes and deny his major party rivals the absolute majority that is needed for a clean election by the Electoral College. All the available signs suggested that he coveted such a result and was preparing to revive his American Independent party, in many if not all states.

Regardless of the governor's chances of recovery, his shooting has undone four years of effort and brave self-exposure by Nixon and all those who coveted the presidency. From the President down, politicians had tried to pretend that the passions and the madness that struck down two Kennedy's and Martin Luther King Jr. belonged to a remote and unhappy past, that the country was recovering its balance and that controversy could again be argued out in a civilized manner.

Now, yet another huge constituency of American voters has been made to feel that it cannot, after all, safely present controversial views and electric personalities to the electorate. That is how the New Frontiersmen felt when President John F. Kennedy and later his brother, Robert, were gunned down by assassins at the peak of their political promise. That is also how vast numbers of black citizens felt when King was slain.

Nixon, Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, George McGovern and Edmund S. Muskie and all the other candidates this year, like Wallace himself, had taken enormous chances since then to expose themselves once more to the crowds at airports and in shopping centers to help the country regain its pride and confidence in orderly political competition. They were heavily protected, but they knew that there really was a protection against the enraged sea of a suicidal assassin.

Violence

Nixon's first instinct, to revive security protection for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, symbolized the first reaction everywhere. It was Washington that the violence of the 1960s was not over. It also dramatized the fear of Kennedy and many members of his family that whatever other calculation he might make, he ought not to tempt fate by exposing himself to a national campaign.

It was thought here that Kennedy would almost certainly be confirmed in his decision not to seek the presidency this year, no matter how great the pressure that was building up.

A further consequence of the shooting of Gov. Wallace is bound to be yet another effort to wring stringent federal laws against indiscriminate sale of guns.

How the Secret Service and the Federal Bureau of Investigation will react to the shooting was no immediately evident, but they will almost certainly reimpose severe limitations on the conduct of the President and his challengers in uncontrollable environments.

Fellini's Masterful 'Roma'

Thomas Quinn Curtiss
ANNES, May 16 (UPI)—
"Never write a preface and give an interview," James Cagney cautioned his friend Steve Cass, the French dramatist. "If haven't said what you wanted
to say in your work, further statements are useless."
Perhaps that is why Federico Fellini canceled his scheduled appearance at Cannes to attend the premiere of his new film, "Roma."
The director speaks for himself: "A travel ogue—but one conducted by
my camera's most imaginative
eye toward the world."
The film is a vast fresco of the real city, intensely personal and constantly absorbing. There is a dull moment in the 2-hour, 15-minute course, and not much more there. There is a mention of the credits—
to Sorrell and Marcello Mastrotti—and fall to appear. Going to the cinema, the American writer, tries to find a North American analogue to the film.

Entertainment in New York

NEW YORK, May 16 (UPI)—
This is how critics rated the stage productions:
"Anna Karenina," com-
and directed by Eugene
O'Neill, at the Off-Broadway
Playhouse, divided the critics. Howard Thompson praised it as "At its best, genuine theater is unexpected, moving and rewarding, often riveting." Jerry Tallmer, the New York Post critic, called it
"a masterpiece of Tolstoy's piece—extraordinarily economic and therefore extraordinary."
"The Glass Menagerie," com-
and directed by William Wyler, at the New York
Theater, got a good review in the Times. Howard Thompson said:
"This is the show where Bert Lahr, as a cabaret washroom
sentry, pursued Ethel Merman,
the club singer, into a Mickey Finn dream conjuring up Old Verdell, with Louis XV after Madame D. Under Marvin Gar-don's bright direction, an excellent cast sings well, dances and taps-clatters up a genial storm
and nimbly attracts the cream of the fun. Diane Finley and William Katt are grand in the Merman-Lahr roles."

Calacomb, a fashion show of
new-fangled garments for nuns,
priests, bishops and cardinals; the Rome of hippie tourists and that of the native tenement dwellers;
the markets and the street festivities; the luxury and the grandeur and the dismal poverty. A wonderful sequence is devoted to the roads that lead to Rome,
choked with traffic in the afternoon glow, under a heavy rain as evening falls, the lights begin to twinkle. In the concluding episode black-jacketed motorcycle riders
drive through the Roman streets
in the late hours, circling the Colosseum like evil phantoms and evaporating as creatures of a nightmare in the early dawn.

This magnificent motion picture of Fellini's Rome is one of the best that has been seen at the Cannes Festival.

By odd coincidence, all the superior offerings at Cannes have been shown out of competition:
"Fritz the Cat," "Fellini Roma"
and John Huston's latest, "Fat City," which, originally among the contenders for prizes, was replaced on the program by a distasteful, minor comedy of television transparency, "To Find a Man," about an adolescent girl
who wants an abortion.

The Huston film proved one of the happy surprises of the festival and was enthusiastically greeted. It is a downbeat tale of a promising boxer's attempt at a comeback after falling into a drunken decline occasioned by his wife's desertion. It is splendidly acted by Stacy Keach as the desperate pugilist, Jeff Bridges as a rising youngster of the ring,
Nick Colasanto as the fight manager and Susan Tyrrell as the discomfited companion of the hero's barroom visits. Huston has directed it masterfully, relating
the story in taut and compelling fashion without the slightest compromise with Hollywood traditions. It has the ring of authenticity. The bold, stark treatment recalls the fiction of Ernest Hemingway. Set in a dreary North California town, the film hints
of the depression years. The style is that of the stronger films
of the 1930s. It is a work of solid and effective realism.

The presence of Groucho Marx
has enlivened the festival, not otherwise notable for its gaiety.
Mr. Marx arrived to accept his Commander of Arts and Letters
medallion at a ceremony in the festival palace and afterwards
held a press conference.
At 81, the last of the great Marx
Brothers is as outspoken as ever.
When asked his opinion of Jerry

CYCLING IN—Director Alfred Hitchcock, in Cannes for the film festival, finds his way around town on a bicycle. His latest film, "Frenzy," will be shown, out of competition, at the end of the program.

Lewis, a French favorite, he said tightly: "He makes faces. We had good jokes." There was an attempt to dispute this, but Groucho
had the last word: "A cheap
comic." Otto Preminger? "A big, fat man who shouldn't be directing pictures" was the Marx view.

"The Trial of the Catonsville Nine," projected with considerable suspense, is a "reconstructed"
documentary about the band
of Vietnam war objectors who burned draft files in 1968. It is not, in other words, a documentary at all for it is played by actors—stock company actors, it would seem—and it is based on a play by Father Daniel Berrigan,
who participated in the raid on the draft board offices.

The cause is not well served by the script for the trial is ridiculously conducted. No such trial has been seen since Bobby Clark revived "Irish Justice," the burlesque show skit. The defendants, instead of being cross-questioned on the stand, take

the witness-box to recount at length their autobiographies, their philosophy and their opinions on all sorts of matters that have nothing to do with the business
at hand. The judge is apparently unable to maintain order and
each of their characters is so scentifically individualistic that the protest against the war is never generalized or is, as should be, the whole issue of conscription. There is a priest who has married a nun. There is a professed Catholic who reprimands
his bishops to a Protestant judge.
Audiences delight in courtroom
dramas and a more relevant film
might have been made from the records of the trial.

Queen Elizabeth's private banquet.
It wasn't, but that was enough
to satisfy the alternately bewil-
dered and increasingly stubborn
official, who with a great sigh of
relief washed his hands of the
whole affair by stamping "Priority" on everything in sight, which
in turn finally satisfied customs
at Orly.
What Spurrier has managed
to get past the vigilant upholders
of reason and order is a 1970
Hambledon. "Nineteen-seventy
was a very good year for English
wines," he says and goes on to
characterize his unique import:
"It's an unpretentious, little
wine, very light, fresh and very
pale yellow. It has a light fruity
nose reminiscent of a German
wine. A trifle sweet perhaps but pleasant altogether if you like
that sort of wine."

Arts Agenda

The first production of Berlioz's
"Benvenuto Cellini" by the Paris
Opéra in the more than 130 years
since its premiere will have its
first performance May 18 under
the musical direction of Jean
Fouquet and in a staging by Paul-
Henri Delbecq, with sets and
costumes by Jacques Dupont. The opening cast will have Alain
Vanzo in the title role, with
Andréa Guiot as Teresa, Jane
Berbié as Ascanio, Robert Mas-
sard as Pierroscia and José Van Dam as Balducci. Fourteen performances are scheduled through
July 21, including the traditional
July 14 free matinee.

The first performances of "Concerto Grosso" by Georges Aperghis
and "Geekandrie" by Elvane
Radigue will be given May 22 at
the Théâtre de la Musique
(Gaieté-Lyrique) in Paris by the Ensemble Instrumental de Mu-
sique Contemporaine de Paris.
Gérard Frey will be the piano
soloist in Miss Radigue's work and
in Bach's Concerto in D-minor.

The first performances of John Gardner's "The Visitors," to an
original libretto by John Ormerod
Greenwood, will be given June 7
and 10 by the English Opera
Group in Jubilee Hall, Aldeburgh,
England. Stewart Bedford will
conduct, and the cast includes
Alexandra Brown, Maureen
Keatch, Nigel Douglas, Bryan
Drake and John Windfield.

The Batseva Dance Company
of Israel, seen in Paris during
last fall's International Dance
Festival, returns May 23 for a
three-week season at the Théâtre

ISRAEL

Luxury Hotel in a Frontier Town

By Naomi Barry

ELATH, Israel, (UPI)—When 90 percent of the staff of a luxury hotel is under 30 with national origins from 30 countries, the location could only be Israel.
Elath is a frontier town at the head of a long inlet of the Red Sea. It is a great place for scuba diving and excursions into the Sinai Desert.
The general manager of the Neptune Hotel is 28-year-old Roger Coster, son of a French-born Jew and a Haitian Catholic mother. The elder Coster was for a long time the proprietor of the famed Hotel Oloffson in Port-au-Prince, Haiti, which was the inspirational site of Graham
Greene's novel "The Comedians."
For the film, the Oloffson was reconstructed in Dehoney.

Fantasy Approach

The Neptune reflects a good deal of the father's fantasy approach. In the evening, a pair of turbaned Sikhs, who come over after a day-line shift working in what used to be King Solomon's mines at Timna, wash dishes in the kitchen. Gula Benabou, the maitre d'hôtel, is a gorgeous-legged girl who once starred in a circus with a 140-pound snake.
"I figured only a snake charmer
could handle 15 Jewish waiters
born in Morocco," says Coster.
Ruth Halm, the chief housekeeper, won the title of Miss Travel in an international competition of air hostesses. In those days, she was flying for Air India. Ruth is the name she took when she was converted. Bernadette Kelly, her assistant, wears
a Star of David around her neck.
She likes the shape. Bernadette comes from a small town 60 miles
from Belfast.

"My parents are very pleased that I am where I am," explains Miss Kelly, "because there are so many troubles at home."
Enticing the public into the snack bar is a bonny, red-haired Scottish lass, Phyllis Wilson. Phylis preferred the serenity of working on a kibbutz but came to Elath to earn enough money to one day get back to Edinburgh.
Elath is always short on labor,
and it is one of the few places
in Israel where no work permit is required. When Coster finds him-

Lapidus at an oasis of the Sinai Desert near Elath.

self in need of more staff, he either goes down to the beach to see what he can pick up or heads
for Joke's coffee house, a hippie headquarters.

He solved absenteeism by sympathetically calling on ill staff
members with a huge bouquet of flowers. If the ailing one had gone out for a day's excursion, Coster simply left the flowers with a get-well note. Flowers are a luxury down in from Tel Aviv.
The resulting embarrassment
brought stability to the Neptune
staff in relatively rapid time.

Coster, a graduate of the International Institute of Hotel Management in Montreux, probably learned most of his lessons as a little boy in the Oloffson. "In a hotel you sell illusion and dreams,"
he says.

To enhance the dream atmosphere, he has a special rate
arrangement with Israeli Air Force pilots to take their rest and relaxation at the Neptune.

"They don't come in uniform
but from their height, their walk,
their wristwatches, you can always spot them," he says. "The customers from Brooklyn always get very excited. Besides, the pilots bring pretty girls and that does a lot for my pool."

Another promotion is the five-
day package deal for Israeli hon-eymoons.

"Most of them have never been in a hotel before. They are shy
and don't know what to expect.
Israelis rarely drink spirits. I send a bottle of wine and two glasses to the room. I decided it will relax them. They manage to nurse the bottle along for the whole five days, but they take the glasses home as a souvenir."

"If you didn't sell dreams," said
the canny Coster, "why should anyone be willing to pay so much
for a few meters of space?"

The Neptune is his first go at being a general manager. It is the first hotel in Elath to employ Arabs. The 24-year-old chef, born in Argentina, looks like a skinny question mark in a tee-shirt.
Henry is the youngest big-time
chef in Israel. The Neptune's youthful staff fields a soccer team
that plays well against groups
from Arkia Airlines, the Timna
copper mines, and the petroleum
pipe lines.

The guest book has a number of recognizable names. Among them, Ted Lapidus, Peter Ustinov, Richard Anthony, Guy Lux
and Prince Napoleon.

The price of the Neptune's luxury is 37.50 Israeli pounds (about $8) per person in a double room
in winter and $3 Israeli pounds (about $8) for the same accommodations in summer. Both prices include breakfast.

WINE

The Trials of Importing
English Wine Into France

By Jon Winroth

PARIS, March 16 (UPI)—It would take a retired British major general to dream of planting vines and making wine in England (presumably because he likes wine but can't stand the French), only a harassed young Englishman would think of importing it into France.

Maj. Gen. Sir Guy Salisbury-
Jones was the British military attaché in Paris from 1946-49.
(The present British ambassador to France, Christopher Soames,
was then a young officer on his staff.) Some 10 years ago he bought 4 1/2 acres at Hambledon
in Hampshire, the home of cricket, and began what must be one of the most unusual occupations
in the British Isles. There are apparently only two or three other small vineyards in southern England.

Paris wine dealer Steven Spurrier is the other half of this seemingly improbable tale. It was hard enough for him as a young Englishman to be selling French wines to the French but selling English wine to the French may be going too far.

He seems confident enough:
"The French will buy it at 20
francs if only to prove to themselves that their own wine is superior," which it is, he hastens
to add.

Past Customs
Nevertheless it was no easy
business getting it into France.
The customs officials at Orly first refused entry because they had no idea what to tax something that obviously did not exist. They got Mr. Spurrier out by telling him that in any case, he would have to have a congé, or permit,
to move the wine from Orly
to Paris.

The congé was granted by the tax authorities, only after the responsible bureaucrat had asked
with a pained expression "Why can't you be satisfied with French wine? Why do you want an English wine?"

Mr. Spurrier returned to customs at Orly, where officials
again got rid of him by telling him that he now needed an import permit.

At the import licensing office,
he announced that he wanted to bring in some English wine.
"Made with what?" was the incredulous reply. They were even more upset to hear that not only was it made with grapes, but German grapes planted in England.

At this point Spurrier began wondering if they were ever going to release what to them was a nonexistent product to a person
they were beginning to take for a dangerous menace to orderly society, so he claimed it was for

Queen Elizabeth's private banquet.
It wasn't, but that was enough
to satisfy the alternately bewil-
dered and increasingly stubborn
official, who with a great sigh of
relief washed his hands of the
whole affair by stamping "Priority" on everything in sight, which
in turn finally satisfied customs
at Orly.

What Spurrier has managed
to get past the vigilant upholders
of reason and order is a 1970
Hambledon. "Nineteen-seventy
was a very good year for English
wines," he says and goes on to
characterize his unique import:
"It's an unpretentious, little
wine, very light, fresh and very
pale yellow. It has a light fruity
nose reminiscent of a German
wine. A trifle sweet perhaps but
pleasant altogether if you like
that sort of wine."

Arts Agenda

The first production of Berlioz's
"Benvenuto Cellini" by the Paris
Opéra in the more than 130 years
since its premiere will have its
first performance May 18 under
the musical direction of Jean
Fouquet and in a staging by Paul-
Henri Delbecq, with sets and
costumes by Jacques Dupont. The
opening cast will have Alain
Vanzo in the title role, with
Andréa Guiot as Teresa, Jane
Berbié as Ascanio, Robert Mas-
sard as Pierroscia and José Van Dam as Balducci. Fourteen performances are scheduled through
July 21, including the traditional
July 14 free matinee.

The first performances of "Concerto Grosso" by Georges Aperghis
and "Geekandrie" by Elvane
Radigue will be given May 22 at
the Théâtre de la Musique
(Gaieté-Lyrique) in Paris by the
Ensemble Instrumental de Mu-
sique Contemporaine de Paris.
Gérard Frey will be the piano
soloist in Miss Radigue's work and
in Bach's Concerto in D-minor.

The first performances of John
Gardner's "The Visitors," to an
original libretto by John Ormerod
Greenwood, will be given June 7
and 10 by the English Opera
Group in Jubilee Hall, Aldeburgh,
England. Stewart Bedford will
conduct, and the cast includes
Alexandra Brown, Maureen
Keatch, Nigel Douglas, Bryan
Drake and John Windfield.

The Batseva Dance Company
of Israel, seen in Paris during
last fall's International Dance
Festival, returns May 23 for a
three-week season at the Théâtre
de la Ville.

"There were Japanese stewardesses on board."

I have nothing against French stewardesses,
they are very nice, very "sympathique",
but I think it's easier for us when we are greeted by Japanese stewardesses.
This is the first time I am flying the Air France
Trans-Siberian line, but I am one of their old customers on the Paris-Tokyo route via the Pole.
I often have to go to Bucharest on business,
that's why I choose Air France — not only because of the schedules and the direct flights, but above all because of the charm of the airline, and of Paris!"

BRIDGE

By Alan Truscott

South showed how a bad trump break can be overcome on the diagrammed deal. He opened with one spade and North raised to two spades. This would be a slight underbid in standard bidding methods, but the partnership was using Precision. Since once can safely pass with 6 or 7 in this method, a raise is usually based on a hand with 8 to 10 points. South therefore was encouraged to invite game by bidding three clubs and North jumped to four spades, accepting the invitation. West's opening lead of the diamond ace was a help to South, who won the second diamond lead with the king in the closed hand. South's spade to the ace revealed the awful 2-7 trump split. He led a heart to the ten, East took the queen and continued with the heart ace. South ruffed, then entered dummy with a club lead, ruffed another heart and played two more club winners to reach this position:

NORTH	WEST	EAST	SOUTH
♠ A J 7	♠ Q 8 6 4 2	♠ K 9 6 4 3	♠ K 10 6 5 3
♥ A 7	♥ A Q 5	♥ J 8 7 2	♥ 10
♦ Q 6 2	♦ Q 10 4	♦ J 8 7 2	♦ K 8 3
♣ Q 10 4	♣ 6 7 2	♣ J 8 7 2	♣ A K J 3

Both sides were vulnerable. The bidding: South West North East 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass 3 ♣ Pass 4 ♠ Pass. West led the diamond ace.

Wood of White Sox Wins 6th of Season

Australia Leads India
Davis Cup Tennis
—ANGALORE, India, May 18. (Reuters).—Australia won both men's singles for a commanding 2-0 lead over India in the Eastern Zone final of the Davis Cup tennis tournament today.
In the opening match, Geoff Hatters beat 31-year-old Jaideep Theraja; 6-3, 6-3, 3-6, 1-6, 6-3, 2-3/4.
And India's number one, a 19-year-old Vijay Amritha, beat 18-year-old Vijay Amritha; 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

second without a loss.

Fred Lewis was high scorer for the Pacers with 22 points and Roger Brown had 19.

The crowd of 15,200 at the Nassau Coliseum was an ABA playoff and Net record. The fifth game is scheduled for Thursday night in Indianapolis.

ATTENTION: AL

Salif Keita, the tall, slender and gifted Mallan center forward of Saint-Etienne, will be playing against France. Based on June 15, and may not be playing for his club next season.

Keita, who scored more than 40 league goals for Saint-Etienne of France last season and has scored 28 this, is one of the most coveted players in Europe. His contract with Saint-Etienne binds him until 1973, but a secret agreement which the club now claims to be invalid, gives him the right to buy his freedom this year for a mere 10,000 francs. I look as though Keita will be off to new pastures.

He is not the only Franco-African on the African Select team which will take part in the Brazilian Independence Cup next month. Michele of Ajaccio, Corsica, who recently helped France's youth team, will be a center forward.

Preakness Field of 9 Likely With Riva Ridge Entry 4 to 5

BALTIMORE, May 16 (WP)—A field of nine appears likely to contest Saturday's 67th running of the $150,000-added Preakness Stakes with Meadow Stable's Riva Ridge-Upper Case entry an odds-on favorite, at about 4 to 5.

Bill Raymond, trainer of Freezer, confirmed yesterday that his colt (sixth in the Kentucky Derby) will start in the $75,000-added event in the 3-year-old triple-crown series. Riva Ridge won the Kentucky Derby by 3 1/4 lengths over No Le Haze, which was ranned here today from Derby. Riva Ridge was the 3-4 favorite. The bay son of Firing Landing looks a considerable shorter price this time around, even though Key To The Map picked up considerable support with the Prep. Key To the Victory is the second choice, at about 2 to 1, with No Le Haze the third most popular selection, at 6 to 1. Upper Case, while last at 12 to 1, was the favorite in the Prep, has the Wood Memorial and Florida Derby to his credit this season.

NEW YORK, May 16 (AP).— "There's a penalty on every play," said one official on the dimly lit field. "So we just call an obvious foul or an obvious offense."

"They've got the basics but their timing is off. This isn't like anything I've ever officiated before."

The official, who has worked high school, college and Eastern Amateur League games, was the newly-formed New York Filices.

It was difficult to keep on top of the action as the lighting in Downing Stadium on Randall's Island, N.Y., was inadequate, the press box was not opened for the contest and the announcer had to stand on a table near the sidelines to view the action.

The announcer, a wag, said one of the many penalties was "for holding above the waist."

On a close first down, he said, "They're going to measure one. Probably 96-26-36."

The Cowgirls, a Detroit team, took a 21-0 halftime lead and won, 28-0.

The ranging in size from 5-foot-3½ pounds to 5-0 and 105, serious, and so were the in-

GOLF—At Pasadena, Calif., Jose Blazek held off Kathy Whitworth with a final-round 5-under-par 7d for a three-round total of 369 and victory in the 1978 U.S. Women's Open tournament. Miss Whitworth carded a 20-81 for a 34-hole total of 398 over the 72-hole event. Blazek, a 21st hole 30-30 birdie on the 17th hole gave Jose Blazek the triumph. Betty Burdette finished second with a 221 total and a last round of 72.

At Little Rock, Ark., Ed Sneed of the United States won the 1978 U.S. Open for a four-round total of 283 to win the $25,000 Mummie Open satellite tournament. Sneed, 34, won the $100,000 prize for his first tour victory since going on the road in 1968. Jose Blazek, 32, won the $50,000 prize for a second-place money of $3,000.

WILLIAMS—At Buenos Aires, Raymond Oulman of Belgium won the 1978 World Professional Billiards Championship 19th straight time. In the last round, he beat Ronald Kewasch of
